PERSONAL AND LOCAL ITEMS OF NEWS

S. G. Butler is building an addition to his livery stable on Emporia avenue.

A large plate glass was yesterday put into the door of Delter's barber shop.

A new plank sidewalk was yesterday laid in front of Herbig's cigar factory and Wilko's bakery.

The shoot from the city mills to the new warehouse was yesterday being put in order. If the election had anything to do with it.

Day before yesterday "Cap" Payne was on the evening train en route for Topeka, where he has been summoned for trial on the Oklahoma suit.

H. G. Lee yesterday put on his real estate office, a large and handsome new sign. It is square in shape with a convex surface, is painted in black with gold letters and is a beauty.

The result of the count in New York, is the all absorbing theme on the streets yet and some people imagine the election is in progress, especially when they get a little tangle foot whisky.

Richard K. Bradley, the man who was so long in jail on suspicion of shooting Burns, is badly paralyzed on one side of his body. He was on the street yesterday but is unable to do any kind of work.

The grading machine was operated upon South Market street yesterday before yesterday just to give an idea of how it worked, and the result is that the street for two squares is built up and drained in the highest style of the art.

Mr. C. H. Douglas, brother of Mrs. Dr. Sherwood and Mr. Moore, cattle men of Barber and Comanche counties, are here with 500 head of cattle to feed on the grounds north of the city, belonging to Dr. Sherwood.

First street, between Lawrence and Market streets, was yesterday being nicely graded. The scraper was run along the gutters and the earth carried from there to the center of the street, and a very nice drive and drainage was thus established.

The prospects are that there will be a Quaker church organized in this city. The first meeting will be held on Sunday next at 3 o'clock, at Kay's school house, just north of the city. Alfred Johnson, of Ohio, who has recently located here, will conduct the services.

Mrs. L. Richt has just returned from a six weeks visit to Indiana. She expected to enjoy her visit, and did, in one sense, but she could not stay away from her Wichita home contented. She is at home again, and happy, and declares that there is no place like Wichita for a happy home and contentment.

Sam Woland has again been exercising his artistic talent upon the north window of the postoffice and stationery store, and the result is a handsome and elegantly arranged display of beautiful and useful articles. Take a look on your pass by, it will cost you nothing and must please your artistic fancy.

During a political discussion on the street yesterday a gentleman attempted to champion St. John, but the crowd made it so warm for him that he had, in order to be able to assist St. John at some future time, to get up and fly. The Republicans of the country don't care to hear the name of the arch traitor mentioned.

One of our reporters in yesterday morning's paper got A. Wagner, the jolly good natured butcher, mixed up in a row. It was all a mistake. Gus says he wasn't the man. We don't know how the matter got mixed up but it was a man by the name of A. Scholl who played the prominent part in the episode reported.

The exhibition given by Professor Child at the rink last night was poorly attended. Mr. Child is a fine general gentleman and holds a prominent position in the art world. The pictures exhibited by him in last evening's entertainment were much above the average and were highly appreciated by those present.

Since the Singer sewing machine company moved from the room on Douglas avenue, about one week ago, Mr. Jewell, the proprietor of the room, has had five different applicants for it. This fact will demonstrate pretty conclusively the fact that business property is in great demand in our city and that she is pushing steadily forward in her race for the first city in the state.

North Lawrence avenue was yesterday being nicely graded and the beautiful condition to complete a beautiful driveway upon that street. The south end of this fashionable avenue was some time ago filled and leveled and now our people can have a road of two miles of smooth, level splendid road that makes this street the popular drive of the city and one of the best in the city can be justly proud.

Two gentlemen, surrounded by an interested crowd of listeners, were engaged in a heated political discussion in front of the Tremont house yesterday. One said that if Cleveland received one of a majority he was in favor of seeing him seated; but if he was not, he would be a party of one. He wanted him to leave the job. His opponent held it just that way too; nevertheless they discussed the question in an apparently warm manner for about half an hour.

A considerable crowd collected about a house on Douglas avenue, in front of the Tremont house yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Miller were in town yesterday from their large farm near Mainville. Mrs. Miller has been a great sufferer for the past three months with a fever, but is now nearly recovered. Mr. M. was anxiously looking up the latest election returns he being an ardent Republican.

Mr. Hubert Child, at present wearing a long and melancholy face from the fact that his wife and two little children are out of town on a visit. Mr. Child is much attached to his home and soon becomes disconsolate when the tenor of the household circle is broken in upon. In fact though he has not a large number of straight tickets and sports a skating rink under his St. John hat, he is still a Child.

The death of Nellie Burr, whose remains will be buried to-day, is a sad one to contemplate. She was a bright and intelligent young woman, the delight of her father's home and the admired of a large circle of warm friends. For many months she has been uncomplainingly and even heroically looked upon the dark flood which rolls between them and the one upon which blooms an eternal spring and perennial youth.

Immortality overshadows All pains, all tears, all life, and all fears—Like the eternal truths of the deep, Into our ears this truth—Thou livest for ever.

If there are distinctions that live in heaven, Nellie Burr will reign among the brightest and most perfect spirits. Her sensitive nature, her warm, loving heart, and keen appreciative mind rendered her life attractive here, and her purity and goodness must exalt her there. And Nellie.

"The stars shall fade away, the sun himself Grow dim with age, and nature sink in years; But thou shalt flourish in immortal youth, Unhurt amidst the war of elements, The wreck of matter and the crush of worlds."

A TALK WITH OUR FARMERS ON THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The Eagle has on more than one occasion claimed that wheat is selling too cheap, and we now think the wheat market is being depressed by a combination of operators much below what it is really worth at the present time. It is claimed by all grain operators and writers on the subject that prices are regulated at this season of the year by the receipts, and in the spring the crop reports are the prime causes which send the prices up or depress them. It is now claimed by operators in wheat that the present low prices are justified by the immense receipts of wheat now arriving in our principal markets. Let us reason on that point.

The visible supply of wheat now in this country is in round numbers thirty-eight million bushels, worth per bushel 72 cents. At this time last year the supply was thirty-three millions, worth 95 cents per bushel. We figure the immense visible supply of wheat, thirty-eight million bushels, is worth nearly $4,000,000 less than thirty-three million in 1900 last year, and the holders of that grain could make $4,000,000 by burning up the surplus wheat. We have no doubt but that the smart young men who write financial letters for the big papers can explain this matter satisfactorily to our inability, but since we have become old we confess our inability to see such fine points.

FOR BUSINESS MEN.

The Eagle has secured the services of G. C. Northrup, of Topeka, a well known expert and accomplished job printer, to take charge of its job department, and the office is now receiving a large invoice of the latest and most approved styles of type and materials. The Eagle has for years led all the printing establishments in the state of Kansas for its exceptionally fine commercial and country work, and low prices, but the growth of the country and the demands of the trade warranted a step forward. No job printer in southwestern Kansas can compete with Mr. Northrup, either as to taste or experience. As for the rest of our patrons, the business men of this city, know that it is not even necessary to ask the price of any work ordered, for only the smallest margins from the cost are ever asked or expected.

OVER THE RIVER.

What is Going On Beyond the Big Arkansas.

The west side is having quite a boom. Hesper Weigand is building a blacksmith shop one block west of the brick works, and will be ready for business in a few days.

Derby & Stout, of Ft. Scott, have just begun the erection of an elevator, with a capacity for handling 1,000 bushels of grain per day. This elevator is being built near the side track about half way between the bridge and the depot. This elevator will be a great acquisition to west Wichita.

There are six very fair dwellings and several small buildings of various kinds in different stages of completion.

Mr. L. Moore is doing a very good grocery trade, but his most market appears to be outstripping anything on this side of the river. He informed our reporter that he is selling an average of 35 barrels per week and the same number of hogs and sheep. He sent to Arkansas City yesterday for two car loads of cattle.

That part of the city still continues to be a place of rest for emigrants, quite a large number being camped there for food and rest. They are mostly destined for Edwards county.

TIPSYS GIRLS ON THEIR MUSCLE.

Cleveland may have carried New York, but it is certain that Dan Parks carried two girls, loaded with about a gallon of whiskey, to the cooler night before last. The frail damsels, after bracing up on intoxicants to a ten-horse power pressure, began to make things lively on Dan's beat, and the policeman not being very badly mashed on that score, was determined to accept them in. This he found to be no easy matter, for after dragging them along, one on each side of him for some distance, their pins gave out and the unfortunate policeman was compelled to carry them to the cooler. They were introduced to Judge Jones this morning and pleaded guilty to the charge of being drunk and disorderly, and were taxed the usual amount in such cases. Dan Parks complained of lame arms yesterday.
